Wright House on Scenic:

The Carmel Foundation Presents "Carmel's 1952 Frank Lloyd Wright House on Scenic" from 2:30-4 p.m. Wednesday at the Carmel Foundation's Diment Hall, southeast corner of Eighth Avenue and Lincoln Street, Carmel. Somehow this building has survived the ocean's onslaught of king tides, salt water spray, and wind for more than 60 years. The work of skilled professionals, craftsmen, and tradespeople have assured its continued presence as a physical and visual icon of Frank Lloyd Wright's architectural genius. Historic preservation consultant Kent Seavey will lead a journey through its history. This presentation is free and open to the public, but space limited to 100 people. For information, call 831-620-8705 or email lgarcia@carmelfoundation.org.

The Wharf and U.S. Open:

Fisherman's Wharf Association will be holding a "Hole in One Celebration at Old Fisherman's Wharf" in conjunction with U.S. Open week through Friday. Everyone is welcome to stop by the wharf and see the golf-themed decorations and enjoy many Wharf merchant activities and specials. Display your U.S. Open ticket at Old Fisherman's Wharf and take advantage of specials from participating wharf merchants, including free appetizers with entrees, up to $5 discounts on whale watching, discounts on shopping and more.

Music

It's summer and you want to dance:

It's the last full moon before summertime, and if you want to dance, look no further than a dance party in anticipation of the "Strawberry Moon" from 7-10 p.m. on Friday, June 14 at The Lab in Carmel, 3728 The Barnyard Suite G-23. Tunes courtesy of DJ Alex Ramirez. Beer and wine available for purchase. $10 suggested donation at the door.

Theater

John Steinbeck's The Pearl:

As part of Pearl Week, Artists INK, in partnership with The Western Stage, will do a dramatic reading and interpreting of choice passages from Steinbeck's "The Pearl" in English and Spanish. Event is noon Saturday June 15 at the National Steinbeck Center, 1 Main St. Salinas. Tickets: eventbrite.com.

Museums

Teen's mission against plastic pollution:

Visit the Pacific Grove Museum of Natural History for a conversation about one teenager's personal project to clean the oceans in our area. From 6:30-8 p.m. Thursday June 13 at the museum, 165 Forest Ave., Pacific Grove. Alex Weber and her father Mike have been free diving off the coast for some time. A few years ago, Alex was struck by the number of golf balls that littered the ocean floor around Pebble Beach. Alarmed by what that addition of plastic might do to the ecosystem, she took on a personal crusade to clean the ocean floor around Pebble Beach. Tickets: $5 for members when purchased online by 3 p.m. Thursday; $10 for nonmembers if purchased online by 3 p.m. Thursday or $15 at the door.
